

Whole language

- The “Whole Language” theory was created in the 80s by a group of American educators to help children learn how to read, but it was extended to foreign language learning. This theory is based on the principle that a foreign language must be taught as a whole, without being divided into its components, such as grammar and vocabulary, emphasizing that students must learn how to read and write in a natural way, the same way they learn their native language, and giving more importance to activities which are relevant to the students.
