

PARTS AND SELF IN IFS THERAPY

Parts

- we are born with them
- help us walk through life
- in their natural state: playful, creative, open, courageous, confident, curious, and helpful without always being overly exhausted

In order to keep exiles hidden and safe, other parts become protectors that work to prevent bad things from happening that could trigger the exile, or to react to bad things that DO happen, so the exile is kept from overwhelming the whole person.

These protectors are firefighters and managers.

Managers

- protectors that look ahead and/or plan to prevent bad things from happening that could trigger the exile to overwhelm the person
- Examples of manager behavior: criticizing, worrying, people pleasing, planning, caretaking, analyzing

Exiles

- when hurt and not adequately comforted, these parts take on negative beliefs about themselves from the hurtful event(s)
- often (but not always) young
- Examples of common negative beliefs: "I am bad," "I am not good enough," "I am shameful."

Firefighters

- protectors that react when something has already happened that triggers the exile, to make it stop
- usually respond without thought of consequence
- Examples of firefighter behavior: rage, self-harm, dissociation, substance abuse, gambling, bingeing, scrolling

Self

When parts, especially protectors, learn that the true Self is available, they can allow self to help them, and to sometimes even help the exile so it doesn't have to carry its hurt (burden) anymore. Then, both the managers and firefighters can relax a little more and not have to work as hard as they have been.
