Spatial Archaeology:

Spatial Archaeology David L. Clarke, 1977 Beyond the Map Gary R. Lock, 2000 This set of papers by European and North American archaeologists explore the interface between new spatial technologies and areas of theoretical concern in spatial archaeology Differing aspects of landscape such as vision perception and movement are explored through a series of case studies that focus on how spatial technologies can influence archaeological interpretation and to what extent these new technologies can be manipulated to take us beyond 2 dimensional maps Individual site based analyses and new applications of predictive modelling are also presented and assessed together with the wider questions of spatial technologies within heritage management

Archaeological Spatial Analysis Mark Gillings, Piraye Hacıgüzeller, Gary Lock, 2020-01-16 Effective spatial analysis is an essential element of archaeological research this book is a unique guide to choosing the appropriate technique applying it correctly and understanding its implications both theoretically and practically Focusing upon the key techniques used in archaeological spatial analysis this book provides the authoritative yet accessible methodological guide to the subject which has thus far been missing from the corpus Each chapter tackles a specific technique or application area and follows a clear and coherent structure First is a richly referenced introduction to the particular technique followed by a detailed description of the methodology then an archaeological case study to illustrate the application of the technique and conclusions that point to the implications and potential of the technique within archaeology The book is designed to function as the main textbook for archaeological spatial analysis courses at undergraduate and post graduate level while its user friendly structure makes it also suitable for self learning by archaeology students as well as researchers and professionals

Spatial Technology and Archaeology David Wheatley, Mark Gillings, 2013-02-05 Geographical Information Systems GIS and related spatial technologies have a new and powerful role to play in archaeological interpretation Beginning with a conceptual approach to the representation of space adopted by GIS this book examines spatial databases the acquisition and compilation of data the analytical compilation of data the analytical functionality of GIS and the creation and utilization of critical foundation data layers such as the Digital Elevation Model DEM The ways in which GIS can most usefully facilitate archaeological analysis and interpretation are then explored particularly as a tool for the management of archaeological resources Formal analysis of archaeological material and the use of trend surface contouring and interpolation procedures are considered along with predictive modeling analysis of visibility and intervisibility Finally there is a discussion of leading edge issues including three dimensional GIS object oriented GIS the relationship between GIS and Virtual Reality technologies and the integration of GIS with distributed systems and the Internet The approach is light and technical detail is kept to a minimum recognizing that most readers are simply interested in using GIS effectively The text is carefully illustrated with worked case studies using archaeological data Spatial Technology and Archaeology provides a single reference source for archaeologists students professionals and academics in archaeology as well as those in anthropology and related disciplines Spatial Analysis in Archaeology Ian Hodder, Clive Orton, 1976-10-14 This 1976 text is a pioneering study in the applications to archaeology of modern statistical and quantitative techniques The authors show how these techniques when sensitively employed can dramatically extend and refine the information presented in distribution maps and other analyses of spatial relationships Techniques of interpretation by inspection can now be made more powerful and rigorous at the same time interest has turned from the examination of such sites and artefacts as things to the spatial relationships between such things their relationships to one another and to landscape features soils and other resources This book was the first to apply the available techniques systematically to the special problems and interests of archaeologists It also demonstrates to geographers and other social scientists who may be familiar with analogous applications in their own fields the exciting interdisciplinary developments this facilitates for example in studies of exchange networks trade and settlement patterns and cultural history Space and Spatial Analysis in Investigations of archaeological intrasite spatial patterns have generally taken one of two directions studies that introduced and explored methods for the analysis of archaeological spatial patterns or those that described and analyzed the formation of spatial patterns in actualistic ethnographic experimental or natural contexts The archaeological studies were largely quantitative in nature concerned with the recognition and definition of patterns the actualistic efforts were often oriented more toward interpretation dealing with how patterns formed and what they meant Our research group on archaeological spatial analysis at the University of Wisconsin Madison has been working for several years on both quantitative and interpretive problems Both lines of investigation are closely related and are important complements In order to demonstrate the convergence of archaeological and actualistic studies for the understanding of intrasite spatial patterns we organized a symposium at the 52nd Annual Meeting of the Society of American Archaeology in Toronto Canada in May 1987 The symposium titled The Interpretation of Stone Age Archaeological Spatial Patterns was organized into two sessions The six papers presented in the morning session five of which comprise Part I of this volume focused on ethnoarchaeological and experimental research Michael Schiffer was the discussant for this half of the symposium Our intention for the ethnoarchaeological contributions to the symposium and volume was the delineation of some of the significant accomplishments achieved thus far by actualistic studies regarding the formation of spatial patterns Exploring

Global Archaeological Theory Pedro Paulo Funari, Andrés Zarankin, Emily Stovel, 2006-04-07 Archaeological theory has gone through a great upheaval in the last 50 years from the processual theory which wanted to make archaeology more scientific to post processual theory which understands that interpreting human behavior even of past cultures is a subjective study This subjective approach incorporates a plurality of readings thereby implying that different interpretations are always possible allowing us to modify and change our ideas under the light of new information and or interpretive frameworks In this way interpretations form a continuous flow of transformation and change and thus archaeologists do not uncover a real past but rather construct a historical past or a narrative of the past Post processual theory also incorporates a conscious and explicit political interest on the past of the scholar and the subject This includes fields and topics such as gender issues ethnicity class landscapes and consumption This reflects a conscious attempt to also decentralize the discipline from an imperialist point of view to an empowering one Method and theory also means being politically aware and engaged to incorporate diverse critical approaches to improve understanding of the past and the present This book focuses on the fundamental theoretical issues found in the discipline and thus both engages and represents the very rich plurality of the post processual approach to archaeology The book is divided into four sections Issues in Archaeological Theory Archaeological Theory and Method in Action Space and Power in Material Culture and Images as Material Discourse Spatial Analysis in Archaeology [in Japanese]. Traditional methods of making archaeological data available are becoming increasingly inadequate Thanks to improved techniques for examining data from multiple viewpoints archaeologists are now in a position to record different kinds of data and to explore that data more fully than ever before The growing availability of computer networks and other technologies means that communication should become increasingly available to international archaeologists Will this result in the democratisation of archaeological knowledge on a global basis Contributors from Western and Eastern Europe the Far East Africa and the Americas seek to answer this and other questions about the way in which modern technology is revolutionising archaeological knowledge Envisioning Landscape Dan Hicks,Laura McAtackney,Graham Fairclough,2016-06-03 The common feature of landscape archaeology is its diversity of method field location disciplinary influences and contemporary voices The contributors to this volume take advantage of these many strands to investigate landscape archaeology in its multiple forms focusing primarily on the link to heritage the impact on our understanding of temporality and the situated theory that arises out of landscape studies Using examples from New York to Northern Ireland Africa to the Argolid these pieces capture the human significance of material objects in support of a more comprehensive nuanced archaeology
