Housing in Postwar Canada John R. Miron, 1988 Between 1945 and 1981 the Canadian population doubled while the number of dwellings more than tripled John Miron shows how changes in demographic structure and housing affordability affected postwar household formation and housing demand He argues that no single explanation adequately reflects the extent of the impact of the demographic trends and the economic changes

Studies on the 2011 Off the Pacific Coast of Tohoku Earthquake Hiroshi Kawase, 2013-09-20 The Tohoku earthquake on March 11 2011 officially designated the Off the Pacific Coast of Tohoku Japan Earthquake by the Japan Meteorological Agency caused an unprecedentedly severe disaster in the northeastern part Tohoku of the Japanese island of Honshu This first volume of the series Natural Disaster Science and Mitigation Engineering DPRI Reports covers various aspects of investigations of scientific findings as well as issues related to the disaster and the subsequent evacuation necessitated by the earthquake The series presents recent advances in natural disaster sciences and mitigation technologies developed in Japan which will be valuable for the mitigation of disasters of a similar kind resulting from future events around the world

Village Housing in the Tropics Jane Drew, Maxwell Fry, Harry L Ford, 2013-11-26 Tropical Architecture although now a highly contested and debated term is the name given to European modern architecture that has been modified to suit the climatic and sometimes cultural context of hot countries These hot countries were labelled the tropics and were often European colonies or countries that had recently won their independence Fry Drew s book written on the threshold of the end of the British Empire was one of the first publications to offer practical advice to architects working in the tropics based on the empirical studies they conducted whilst based in British West Africa during the Second World War The book with its numerous illustrations plans and easy to follow explanations became a key manual for all architects working in hot climates and in particular those tasked with designing dwellings and small town plans Although the Royal Engineers and Schools of Tropical Medicine had long been designing and campaigning for better planning improved sanitation and had for example developed methods of cross ventilation this book became an instant hit Tropical Architecture suddenly bloomed into its own distinct canon and by 1955 the Architectural Association had set up a course specialising in tropical architecture led for a short time by Fry Village Housing in the Tropics had a significant impact when it was written on a profession that had had little guidance on working in hot climates and on architecture students and universities who began to modify their courses to accommodate different conditions Although from a post colonial perspective many scholars now associate this architecture as being a continuation of the Imperial mission this does not reduce the significance of the publication Indeed Tropical Architecture is regarded as being the forerunner to green architecture developing passive low energy buildings that are tailored to suit their climate and built with local materials
