HOW LONG HAS THIS BEEN GOING ON?
WITH A SONG IN MY HEART*
IMAGINATION*
WHAT IS THERE TO SAY*

THERE IS NO GREATER LOVE*
ALL OF ME
INTERMEZZO
BUT NOT FOR ME
ALL THE WAY

Ike Quebec came out of the Cole Calloway band in 1944 and quickly established himself as a major tenor sax voice. Quebec was involved in a long line of super tenor sessions that Calloway featured during his heyday. The list begins with Ben Webster and continues with Chu Berry, Illinois Jacquet, Ike and Andy, Sam Taylor. Oddly enough, his three-year stay with Calloway did not really benefit him in terms of recorded exposure. Calloway was a Columbia artist and that label was still at war with the A.F.M. when the really great, Oh, Ike had come on Calloway items such as The Honeydripper and Hey Now, Hey Now, but for some months prior to that, he had been a Blue Note artist. (You have to hear an album and broadcast by the wartime Calloway band to hear how good it was.)

The five sessions which Ike recorded for Blue Note during 1944-1946 would be enough to establish his position as one of the best tenors of the era if he never did anything else. They are that good! And if one concentrated only on discographical facts, it may appear as if he did little else for the next decade.

Apart from a rather lackluster date for Verve in 1952, there were no Ike Quebec records between 1946 and 1956. What happened between those years was a combination of changing tastes on jazz marksmanship and Ike's own personal hangups. Ike's style, reminiscent for big sound, might generally be classified with that of Coleman Hawkins and Ben Webster. As an example of just what happened to that school of saxophonists during the late 1940s and early 1950s, consider the fact that Hawkins recorded less than two LPs worth of material from 1946-1954, and Webster less than half an LP's worth of performance between 1947-1952 in today's same wide respect for great tenors of all eras. In a fact, the idea of an artist of such stature not recording for such a period would seem impossible, but the fact remains of the three most definitely true in fact. Fortunately for the band for all, he stayed in touch with Blue Note.

In 1956 he recorded some 40s for Blue Note, talking with Leonard Feather. Alfred Lion talked about Ike's return.

"The 40s singles were a sort of trial balloon, and I was delighted to find not only that many people still remembered Ike, but also that those who don't know him were excited and excited by what they heard. So recently I decided to jump into a full album session with new material to give Ike a complete new start."

The results were Heavy Soul (BN 4033) and in succession, several more LPs were made, including Blue And Sentimental (BN 4036), It Might As Well Be Spring (BN 4126) — which contains Ike's masterpiece "Old Man River", and Soul Sambo (BN 4178). In addition, Ike began acting as an aide de camp to Blue Note and helped coordinate sessions and bring talent to the label. He occasionally appeared as a sideman with Jimmy Smith, Sonny Clark, Grant Green and singer Duke Greene.

But wait a minute! What happened to those sessions originally recorded for 40s? One of them is right here and hopefully there will be more to follow! Actually of the songs in this album, only "All Of Me" and "Intermezzo" were issued on 45. Those two plus "All The Way" and "But Not For Me" were recorded February 5, 1952, with the rhythm section that had already served Fred Jackson for his Heaven And Heaven (BN 4034) album recorded the same day. Unfortunately that album does not give any biographical data on the other players, but they were obviously all right with Ike who returned with them (and Sam Jones) a few days later to record the remainder of the music heard here. Van Dyke is a sensitive organist without the bombast exhibited by many players on that instrument. His playing recalls Johnny Hammond from this time. Jones, on the evidence, was a purveyor of limited skills but good taste. Hogan, who worked most frequently with Lionel Hampton and Randy Weston is lady and unobtrusive.

But there is little question that Ike Quebec is the star — out here. Listen to "How Long Has This Been Going On" for any of the subtle ballad to hear that balladist exemplar of what good, strong, melodic, tenor playing is all about. If you want an example of Ike with a little tongue, try "With A Song In My Heart," "All Of Me" or "But Not For Me." Either way, you are hearing a master at work. Alfred Lion really told the whole story in that earlier quote; if you haven't heard Ike Quebec prior to this album, you will be properly thrilled by the discovery, while if you know his work from any of the previously mentioned sessions, you'll jump for joy after hearing this. They simply don't make tenor saxophonists like Ike Quebec any more!

It is quite likely that the cancer which would kill Ike Quebec less than a year after these recordings were made had already infected his body. Whether or not that accounts for the extraordinary passion in his playing is unknown, but one thing is certain, Ike Quebec was one of the very best tenor players who ever lived, and it doesn't matter whether you want to cite 78s from the 1940s, or LPs from the 1950s. The evidence is on Blue Note.
