

THEE, HANNAH!

came down, but then she hadn't been playing "Jody" with Mother's dress.

There was a great deal of excited whispering at school the next day and a great deal of ranting of stories. Mother had said that Sally and Hannah might go skating with John and Charlie when school was over. Hannah could hardly wait for lessons to be over and kept looking out of the window to make sure that it hadn't begun to snow again.

As late it was now, Cecily's mother had said she might go too, if the boys would look after her. As the girls moved Chestnut Street they saw John and Charlie laughing and shouting and pointing at the big boys who liked to roam about and down on their haunches. The big boys didn't seem to think it was funny and were shaking their heads as if they were. John and Charlie joined their sisters and Cecily across the street.

"Oh!" said John, holding his sides. "What fun! I guess that's the last time they'll try that trick! Nevah helped us to rock our hats full of rocks!"

The girls laughed, and Hannah said, "Old Sperry must talk to Nevah sometime too."

It was very exciting to be going toward the river instead of toward home after school. The snow was piled high on the sides of the walks and lay thick enough in the streets so that there was drifting. Boys and girls, young men and young women crowded the walks on their way to enjoy the ice. Snows clacked against their shoulders, and the crisp air was filled with their laughter.

When they reached the river, Sally, Hannah and Cecily sat on the edge of the wharf while the boys helped them on with their skates.

Boys that had been caught in the sudden cold were frozen at the wharf
