Teaching Development Economics from a Gender Perspective Günseli Berik, Yana van der Meulen Rodgers, 2022 An undergraduate course in development economics presents an ideal opportunity to introduce students to the importance of gender differences in economic outcomes This article argues that a systematic integration of gender into development economics courses based on standard textbooks is feasible and desirable We provide a gendered narrative of how to engender a development economics course using as examples topics that are commonly taught and we show how gender aware scholarly articles classroom activities and assignments can complement a course based on a standard textbook or set of articles We engender three main sections of a prototype development economics course meanings and measures of economic development strategies for economic development and salient issues in development and we add a forward looking section on creating equitable development Development Economics Shahrukh Rafi Khan,2019-10-23 Following the 2007 2009 financial and economic crises there has been an unprecedented demand among economics students for an alternative approach which offers a historical institutional and multidisciplinary treatment of the discipline Economic development lends itself ideally to meet this demand yet most undergraduate textbooks do not reflect this This book will fill this gap presenting all the core material needed to teach development economics in a one semester course while also addressing the need for a new economics and offering flexibility to instructors Rather than taking the typical approach of organizing by topic the book uses theories and debates to guide its structure This will allow students to see different perspectives on key development questions and therefore to understand more fully the contested nature of many key areas of development economics The book can be used as a standalone textbook on development economics or to accompany a more traditional text Teachers

Register of Educational Research in the United Kingdom, 1992-1995 National Foundation For Educational Research,1995 This latest volume of the Register of Educational Research in the United Kingdom lists all the major research projects being undertaken in Britain during the latter months of 1992 the whole of 1993 and 1994 and the early months of 1995 Each entry provides names and addresses of the researchers a detailed abstract the source and amount of the grant where applicable the length of the project and details of published material about the research The Art of Teaching; a Manual for Teachers, Superintendents, Teachers' Reading Circles, Normal Schools, Training Classes, and Other Persons Interested in the Right Training of the Young Emerson Elbridge White,1901 Papers Presented at the Second Conference on the Teaching of Economics ,1911 Development Economics as Taught in Developing Countries ,2015 This paper uses a combination of survey questions to instructors and data collected from course syllabi and examinations to examine how the subject of development economics is taught at the undergraduate and masters levels in developing countries and benchmark this against undergraduate classes in the United States The study finds that there is considerable heterogeneity in what is considered development economics there is a narrow core of only a small set of topics such as growth theory poverty and inequality human capital and institutions taught in at least half the classes with substantial variation in other topics covered In developing countries development economics is taught largely as a theoretical subject coupled with case studies with few courses emphasizing data or empirical methods and findings This approach contrasts with the approach taken in leading U S economics departments and with the evolution of development economics research The analysis finds that country income per capita the role of the state in the economy the education level in the country and the involvement of the instructor in research are associated with how close a course is to the frontier The results suggest there are important gaps in how development economics is taught Catalogue of Research Literature for Development: Food production and
