Congress. Senate. Committee on Armed Services, 1990 paint me a dream John Mc Guckin, 2011-01-15 John Mc Guckin's work is anchored deep in the realities of life personal social political His opinions on each of these subjects are clearly sometimes even roughly expressed there is no subject that his pen considers taboo And yet you can sense there beneath all these worldly layers the dreamer In his ever-present melancholic soft poetry The Long Shadow David Reynolds, 2013-11-07 In Britain we have lost touch with the Great War Our overriding sense now is of a meaningless futile bloodbath in the mud of Flanders of young men whose lives were cut off in their prime for no evident purpose But by reducing the conflict to personal tragedies however moving we have lost the big picture the history has been distilled into poetry In The Long Shadow critically acclaimed author David Reynolds seeks to redress the balance by exploring the true impact of 1914-18 on the 20th century Some of the Great War's legacies were negative and pernicious but others proved transformative in a positive sense Exploring big themes such as democracy and empire nationalism and capitalism and re-examining the differing impacts of the War on Britain Ireland and the United States The Long Shadow throws light on the whole of the last century and demonstrates that 1914-18 is a conflict that Britain more than any other nation is still struggling to comprehend Stunningly broad in its historical perspective The Long Shadow is a magisterial and seismic re-presentation of the Great War The Long Shadow Bertha Muzzy Bower, 2015-12-03 The Long Shadow from Bertha Muzzy Bower American author who wrote novels fictional short stories and screenplays 1871-1940 The Long Shadow Karl Alexander, Doris Entwisle, Linda Olson, 2014-05-31 A volume in the American Sociological Association's Rose Series in Sociology West Baltimore stands out in the popular imagination as the quintessential inner city gritty run-down and marred by drugs and gang violence. Indeed, with the collapse of manufacturing jobs in the 1970s, the area experienced a rapid onset of poverty and high unemployment with few public resources available to alleviate economic distress. But in stark contrast to the image of a perpetual urban underclass depicted in television by shows like The Wire, sociologists Karl Alexander, Doris Entwisle, and Linda Olson present a more nuanced portrait of Baltimore's inner city residents that employs important new research on the significance of early life opportunities available to low income populations. The Long Shadow focuses on children who grew up in west Baltimore neighborhoods and others like them throughout the city, tracing how their early lives in the inner city have affected their long term well being. Although research for this book was conducted in Baltimore, that city's struggles with deindustrialization, white flight, and concentrated poverty were characteristic of most East Coast and Midwest manufacturing cities. The experience of Baltimore's children who came of age during this era is mirrored in the experiences of urban children across the nation. For 25 years, the authors of The Long Shadow tracked the life progress of a group of almost 800 predominantly low income Baltimore school children through the Beginning School Study Youth Panel (BSSYP). The study monitored the children's transitions to young adulthood with special attention to how opportunities available to them as early as first grade shaped their socioeconomic status as adults. The authors' fine grained analysis confirms that the children who lived in more cohesive neighborhoods had stronger families and attended better schools, tended to maintain a higher economic status later in life. As young adults, they held higher income jobs and had achieved more personal milestones such as marriage than their lower status counterparts. Differences in race and gender further stratified life opportunities for the Baltimore children. As one of the first studies to closely examine the outcomes of inner city whites, in addition to African Americans, data from the BSSYP shows that by adulthood, white men of lower status family background, despite attaining less education on average, were more likely to be employed than any other group, in part due to family connections and long standing racial biases in Baltimore's industrial economy. Gender imbalances were also evident: the women who were more likely to be working in low wage service and clerical jobs earned less than men. African American women were doubly disadvantaged insofar as they were less likely to be in a stable relationship than white women and therefore less likely to benefit from a second income. Combining original interviews with Baltimore families, teachers, and other community members with the empirical data gathered from the authors' groundbreaking research, The Long Shadow unravels the complex connections between socioeconomic origins and socioeconomic destinations to reveal a startling and much needed examination of who succeeds and why.

THE LONG SHADOW OF THE 19TH CENTURY Farish A. Noor, Stamford Raffles, James Brooke, John Crawford, and Anna Leonowens were some of those who came from Europe or the United States to Southeast Asia in the nineteenth century and then wrote about what they saw. Their writings deserve to be read now for what they truly were: Not objective accounts of a Southeast Asia frozen in imperial time, but rather as culturally myopic and perspectivist works that betray the subject positions of the authors themselves. Reading them would allow us to
