Maternal Geographies Jennufer L. Johnson, 2019-05-01 This collection broaches the intersections of critical motherhood studies and feminist geography Contributors demonstrate that an important dimension of the social construction of motherhood is how mothering happens in space and place leading to the articulation of diverse maternal geographies Through 16 concise chapters divided into three thematic sections the contributors provide an account of motherhood and mothering as spatial practices that are embedded in relations of power across time and place While some contributors explore how dominant discourses of motherhood seek to keep mothers in their place others take up the notion of maternal geographies as productive in their own right and follow their subjects as they create a new sense of place Collectively the authors demonstrate that mothers are produced and regulated as subjects in relation to space and place and also that practices of mothering produce spatial relationships were treated by the British colonial power Benjamin Roßkopf,2014-10-22 Pre University Paper from the year 2009 in the subject Didactics for the subject English Miscellaneous grade 13 Punkte language English abstract During the years 1910 and 1970 up to 100 000 Aboriginal children were taken forcibly from their families by police or welfare officers because of a Federal and State Government edict The main motive was to assimilate Aboriginal children into European society over one or two generations by denying and destroying their Aboriginality This issue is also discussed in the novel Rabbit Proof Fence by Doris Pilkington which tells a story about three girls who were also uprooted from their community and taken to a state settlement about 1 500 miles away from their home In this reality based story the girls escaped from their internment camp and tried to run back home by following the rabbit proof fence My term paper is divided into four chapters In the first one a short outline of British colonisation in Australia and its impacts on the Aborigines will be given The second chapter is about the mentioned book and its author and the third part of this term paper analyses some extracts from Doris Pilkington s novel and proves their verity with historical documents until it finally comes to its conclusion in the last chapter which tells us something about the current situation of the Aborigines and the reactions of the Australian government

Altman,Melinda Hinkson,2007 Edited by Jon Altman Director of the ANU Centre for Aboriginal Economic Policy Research and Melinda Hinkson Lecturer in Anthropology at the ANU this book is an urgent critical response to the government s actions A wide range of authors contextualise the crisis facing remote Aboriginal communities and the government s most recent response in light of the history of and wider policy towards Aboriginal Australia The book considers how the rhetoric of emergency excludes such questions as whether the government itself is complicit in the state of remote Aboriginal communities how the approach to tackling child sexual abuse dovetails with the government s broader goals in Indigenous affairs the long term effects of the government s actions and alternative responses to the Anderson Wild report

Unfinished Business Andrew Gunstone,2007 In 1991 the Hawke Government aimed to reconcile Indigenous and non Indigenous people by implementing a ten year reconciliation process Its three broad goals concerned the education of the wider community Indigenous socio economic disadvantage and a document of reconciliation The following
