Berghuis, 2006 Performance Art in China takes as its subject one of the most dynamic and controversial areas of experimental art practice in China In his comprehensive study Sydney based theorist and art historian Thomas J Berghuis introduces and investigates the idea of the role of the mediated subject of the acting body in art a notion grounded in the realization that the body is always present in art practice as well as its subsequent secondary representations Through a series of in depth case studies Berghuis reveals how during the past 25 years Chinese performance artists have acted out their art often in opposition to the principles governing correct behavior in the public domain In addition to a 25 year chronology of events a systematic index of places names and key terms as well as a bibliography and a glossary in English and Chinese this study also offers the reader numerous previously unpublished photos and documents Chinese Modernity and Global Biopolitics Sheldon H. Lu, 2007-05-31 This ambitious work is a multimedia interdisciplinary study of Chinese modernity in the context of globalization from the late nineteenth century to the present Sheldon Lu draws on Chinese literature film art photography and video to broadly map the emergence of modern China in relation to the capitalist world system in the economic social and political realms Central to his study is the investigation of biopower and body politics namely the experience of globalization on a personal level Lu first outlines the trajectory of the body in modern Chinese literature by focusing on the adventures pleasures and sufferings of the male and female body in the writings of selected authors He then turns to avant garde and performance art tackling the physical self more directly through a consideration of work that takes the body as its very theme material and medium In an exploration of mass visual culture Lu analyzes artistic reactions to the multiple uneven effects of globalization and modernization on both the physical landscape of China and the interior psyche of its citizens This is followed by an inquiry into contemporary Chinese urban space in popular cinema and experimental photography and art Examples are offered that capture the daily lives of contemporary Chinese as they struggle to make the transition from the vanishing space of the socialist lifestyle to the new capitalist economy of commodities Lu reexamines the history and implications of China's belated integration into the capitalist world system before closing with a postscript that traces the genealogy of the term postsocialism and points to the real relevance of the idea for the investigation of everyday life in China in the twenty first century Zhang Huan Huan Zhang, Yilmaz Dziewior, 2003 Among the first Chinese artists to turn to performance art Zhang Huan a member of the Beijing East Village community focused in his early work on submitting his naked body to extreme psychological and physical situations Of late theatricality and narrative have played increasing larger roles in his work as in a 1997 piece in which he commissioned a group of farmworkers to climb into a fish pond near Beijing thus creating an image representing the flooding of cities by masses from the country Ancient and Early Medieval Chinese Literature (vol. 3 & 4), 2014-09-18 At last
