Belcher,2020-06-01 The Nashville Campaign culminating with the last major battle of the Civil War is one of the most compelling and controversial campaigns of the conflict The campaign pitted the young and energetic James Harrison Wilson and his Union cavalry against the cunning and experienced Nathan Bedford Forrest with his Confederate cavalry This book is an analysis of contributions made by the two opposing cavalry forces and provides new insights and details into the actions of the cavalry during the battle This campaign highlighted important changes in cavalry tactics and never in the Civil War was there closer support by the cavalry for infantry actions than for the Union forces in the Battle of Nashville The retreat by Cheatham s corps and the Battle of the Barricade receive a more in depth discussion than in previous works on this battle The importance of this campaign cannot be overstated as a different outcome of this battle could have altered history The Nashville Campaign reflected the stark realities of the war across the country in December 1864 and would mark an important part of the death knell for the Confederacy The Third Texas Cavalry in the Civil War Douglas Hale,2000-09-01 The Third Texas Cavalry Regiment recruited from twenty six counties of northeastern Texas was one of the most famous Confederate units from the Lone Star State Douglas Hale narrates troop movements and battle actions sensitively portraying the sufferings and private thoughts of individual cavalymen and their commanders as they marched back and forth across the Southern landscape The Texas Criminal Reports Volume 45 Anonymous,2013-09 This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher Not indexed Not illustrated 1910 edition Excerpt so doing the deceased or others had made an attack on him which from the manner and character of it and the relative strength of the parties and the defendant's knowledge of the character and disposition of the deceased caused him to have a reasonable expectation or fear of death or serious bodily injury and that acting under such reasonable expectation or fear the defendant killed the deceased then you should acquit him and if the deceased was armed at the time he was killed and was making such attack on defendant and if the weapon used by him and the manner of its use was such as were reasonably calculated to produce death or serious bodily harm then the law presumes the deceased intended to murder or aimed to inflict serious bodily injury upon the defendant. Said charge was not authorized by the evidence in the case there being no evidence that deceased had made an attack on appellant at the time appellant drew his weapon and fired and same in effect told the jury if there was not an actual attack being made on appellant that he would not have the right to defend himself and virtually instructed the jury that appellant had no right to act against an attack which was imminent but not actual and from his standpoint about to be made by the deceased and Rogers judged by the actions of deceased when defendant came in sight of him at the instant of the homicide and the following language of said charge and if the weapon used by him and the manner of its use etc again indicated to the jury that the deceased must have been actually using his weapon before any presumption could arise in favor of appellant and in effect that no presumption did arise if the deceased was attempting to
