Fa,2012-12-06 The Barbary macaque all too often mistakenly called an ape was first brought to the attention of the Conservation Working Party of the Primate Society of Great Britain late 1979 when John Fa reported that surplus animals were being sent from Gibraltar to dubious locations such as an Italian safari park Since there had been no scientific input into the Army s management of the monkey colony on Gibraltar and there was concern about inbreeding nutrition and health about the long term viability of the colony it was felt that the Society could help The Gibraltar Scientific Authority and the Army were very receptive to our offer and ideas and this topic occupied successive chairmen over the last few years Robin Dunbar and Richard Wrangham myself and now Miranda Stevenson with constant prompting and help from John Fa Considerations soon extended to the status of the species as a whole so that there have been three main aspects 1 the improved health of a larger self sustaining population on Gibraltar 2 the status and behavioural biology of natural populations in North Africa Morocco and Algeria and 3 the breeding achievements in European parks and zoos and their potential for reintroduction to suitable areas in North Africa along with other possibilities Robin Dunbar organized the compilation of recommendations for managing the Gibraltar colony with regard to numbers age sex structure and behavioural relationships with some observations on diet to avoid obesity and infertility

ERDA Energy Research Abstracts United States. Energy Research and Development Administration,1977 Science and Heritage Great Britain: Parliament: House of Lords: Science and Technology Committee,2006-11-16 The conservation of cultural artefacts such as buildings works of art and books presents a fascinating rich and diverse range of scientific challenges and the UK has a high reputation in the field based in large part on past achievements However the Committee s report finds that our national standing is now under threat as the sector is fragmented and under valued and the DCMS has completely failed to grasp the threat to heritage science and thus to conservation The Department s emphasis on widening public access to our cultural heritage is a laudable objective but this policy needs to be balanced by effective conservation based on sound science if we are to leave a sustainable cultural heritage for the benefit of future generations The Committee also calls on the heritage sector to come together in developing a broad based national strategy for heritage science to be championed at departmental level by the newly appointed DCMS Chief Scientific Adviser and co ordinated administratively by English Heritage drawing on input from all bodies active in the sector including those in Scotland Wales and Northern Ireland Endangered Species Act, Section 7 Consultation United States.
