Transition to Adulthood Richard A. Young, Sheila K. Marshall, Ladislav Valach, José F. Domene, Matthew D. Graham, Anat Zaidman-Zait, 2010-09-08 The transition to adulthood involves for most individuals moving from school to work establishment of long term relationships possibly parenting and a number of other psychosocial transformations Now more than ever there is a concern within popular and research literature about children growing up too soon or too late or failing to realize changes associated with being adult With this in mind the book intends to answer a series of timely questions in regard to transition to adulthood and propose a wholly new approach to counseling that enables youth to engage fully in their lives and achieve their best

Active Transition to Adulthood A New Approach for Counseling will discuss the authors work on the transition to adulthood including early and late adolescence from an entirely innovative perspective action theory Over a period of 10 15 years the authors have collected substantial data on adolescents and youth in transition and will present an approach to counseling based on these data and cases The action theory perspective in which the authors have grounded their work addresses the intentional goal directed behavior of persons and groups that is expressed through particular actions longer term projects and life encompassing careers In this book both transition to adulthood and counseling will be covered in the language of goal directed action In this way both transition and counseling reflect and capture the action projects and careers in which families youth and clients are engaged and use to construct on going identity and other narratives

Leaving Care and the Transition to Adulthood Varda R. Mann-Feder, Martin Goyette, 2019-02-25 The transition to adulthood is a longer and more complex process than it was just a few decades ago and a growing number of youth and young adults experience significant challenges in the establishment of an autonomous and independent lifestyle when compared to previous generations Successful high school graduation followed by employment is no longer the inevitable trajectory for young people especially in the current socio economic context where jobs are less accessible and more demanding in terms of specialized skills and higher academic qualifications Unable to rely on family for emotional and financial support vulnerable youth who grow up in substitute care are especially effected by the lengthening of this transition to adulthood The dismal outcomes for youth growing up in care are by now well documented and more recently a range of models have been proposed to help advance our understanding of these outcomes and how to forestall them However the literature on leaving care has long suffered from the absence of theory that could guide meaningful intervention In response to this gap Leaving Care and the Transition to Adulthood offers a comprehensive overview of the newest contributions to this area in relation to theory in addition to the Theory of Emerging Adulthood while also featuring cutting edge research and best practices that support adjustment across a range of domains for this population International in scope this book focuses on bringing together major advances that span the literature on transitioning to adulthood within the care system offering a unique and important contribution to the field

Transitioning to Adulthood in Asia: School, Work, and Family Life Wei-Jun Jean Yeung, Cheryll Alipio, Frank F. Furstenberg, Jr., 2013-03-07 In the past decade or so scholars in the United States have identified the emergence of a new distinct stage of life as adolescence has become protracted and most young people of recent generations take longer to achieve economic and psychological autonomy than they did a half century ago This new life stage in between adolescence and adulthood when young people are in a semiautonomous state has come to be known as early adulthood Main characteristics of this new life stage include a later entry into the work force a longer period of time living in the natal home and a delayed age at marriage and childbearing These trends not only have profound implications for young adults well being and intergenerational relationships but also challenge social institutions such as family schools labor markets and many youth serving institutions

Leaving Home Julia A. Graber, 1996 This volume of New Directions of Child Development brings together longitudinal investigations of the transition to adulthood using a multi cultural approach Our specific focus is on the nature of parent child relations prior to and during the transition from home and into adulthood As a group the chapters identify factors associated with the timing of the transition to adulthood as well as the adjustment outcomes as defined by mental health achievement behaviors deviant behaviors and social relations associated with the timing and type of young adult transition In particular the longitudinal design of most of the studies allows the investigators to connect prior childhood and adolescent experiences with young adult outcomes On Your Own Without a Net D. Wayne Osgood,2005-12 In the decade after high school young people continue to rely on their families in many ways sometimes for financial support sometimes for help with childcare and sometimes for continued shelter But what about those young people who confront special difficulties during this period many of whom can count on little help from their families On Your Own Without a Net documents the special challenges facing seven vulnerable populations during the transition to adulthood former foster care youth youth formerly involved in the juvenile justice system youth in the criminal justice system runaway and homeless youth former special education students young people in the mental health system and youth with physical disabilities During adolescence government programs have been a major part of their lives yet eligibility for most programs typically ends between the ages of eighteen and twenty one This critical volume shows the unfortunate repercussions of this termination of support and points out the issues that must be addressed to improve these young people s chances of becoming successful adults The Changing Transition to Adulthood Francis Goldscheider,Calvin Goldscheider,1999-06-14 This book places changes in leaving and returning home in the context of the major events of 20th century America The authors examine the reasons children ultimately leave home to live on their own and how the pattern has changed throughout the 20th century Using data from the National Survey of Families and Households Goldscheider and Goldscheider have constructed these patterns for when children leave home and what the most important criteria for doing so are to different groups in America including men women Blacks Hispanics Whites and different religious groups and social classes Problems of Youth Muzafer Sherif,2017-07-05 This book describes and analyzes from an interdisciplinary point of view those problems of youth that are currently objects of remedial action on both community and national levels It explores the many causes of adolescent happiness and discontent behavior and misbehavior aspirations and aversions in the rapidly changing patterns of contemporary class institutional and cultural settings It provides practical information for all professionals concerned with adolescent problems and affords small comfort to any who hopes for quick results Problems of Youth first considers problems traditionally considered in youth research discussing adolescent attitudes and goals within a broadly applicable theory of adolescent development The second part concentrates on youth problems in terms of their dynamics in social and cultural settings undergoing change at different rates The third part presents studies of youth in trouble offering guidelines for new theoretical and empirical approaches and underscoring the need to study individual youth problems within their socio cultural and class frameworks The final part attempts through research and measurement the major sources of influences affecting youth Reflecting the position that there is a constant danger of viewing adolescence exclusively through the eyes of one s own specialty the contributors to this volume take a cross disciplinary approach to the subject drawing on resources of other fields to expand the perspective of their particular area of specialization In doing so they offer all students of sociology social psychology and related disciplines a new unified approach to the timely paradox of youth in transition with itself and with a world that is itself in transition

The diversification in family practices constitutes a major theme of research in the field of population studies A substantial part of these diversification processes are linked to the stage of family formation The increase in non marital cohabitation and non marital fertility and the postponement of marriage and parenthood have particularly characterised the transition from youth to adulthood among the post war cohorts In studying the transition from youth to adulthood the timing of events is crucial Different timing patterns are the product of the interplay between a multitude of factors in the institutional as well as the personal context In this respect cross country comparative research is a powerful tool to understand the determinants of the change processes To move beyond the mere description of the changes is a challenge that not only is eminently scientific it also gives the necessary insights to grasp the implications of the changes for policy From this policy perspective the postponement of the integration into adulthood has major societal consequences such as the very low fertility and the fact that the family formation itself became a matter of choice Over the years the Population and Family Studies Centre CBGS a scientific institute of the Flemish Community has intensively investigated these changes constituting the Second Demographic Transition not only through national but through cross national comparative research
