Something New Under The Sun:

Something New Under the Sun J. R. McNeill, 2001-04-17 One of those rare books that is both sweeping and specific, scholarly and readable. What makes the book stand out is its wealth of historical detail. Elizabeth Kolbert, The New Yorker. The history of the twentieth century is most often told through its world wars, the rise and fall of communism, or its economic upheavals. In his startling book, J. R. McNeill gives us our first general account of what may prove to be the most significant dimension of the twentieth century: its environmental history. To a degree unprecedented in human history, we have refashioned the earth's air, water, and soil, and the biosphere of which we are a part. Based on exhaustive research, McNeill's story is a compelling blend of anecdotes, data, and shrewd analysis; never preaching, it is our definitive account. This is a volume in The Global Century Series, general editor Paul Kennedy.

Something New Under the Sun Helen Gavaghan, 2012-12-06 In this, the first history of artificial satellites and their uses, Helen Gavaghan shows how the idea of putting an object in orbit around the earth changed from science fiction to indispensable technology in the twinkling of an eye. Thanks to satellites, we can now send data and images anywhere in the world in an instant. The satellite-based navigational system can pinpoint your exact location anywhere in the world; it is so precise that from outer space it can detect the sag on an airplane's wing. Focusing on three major areas of development: navigational satellites, communications, and weather observation and forecasting, Gavaghan tells the remarkable inside story of how obscure men and women, often laboring under strict secrecy, made the extraordinary scientific and technological discoveries needed to make these miracles happen. Written by a science journalist with support from the Sloane Foundation, the book describes the birth of the modern scientific era in the twentieth century with the creation of satellite technology. The narrative is part history, beginning with the Russian-U.S. contest with the launch of Sputnik; part politics, as scientists and visionary engineers compete for scarce funding that will bring their dreams to reality; partly the story of the singular and fascinating individuals who were present at the creation of our modern technological era.
