The Peacekeeping Economy Lloyd J. Dumas, 2011-01-01 The idea that military strength is virtually synonymous with security is deeply entrenched and widely held But while the threat or use of military force may sometimes be necessary it cannot keep us as safe as we would be by building relationships that replace hostility with a sense of mutual purpose and mutual gain Economic relationships says Lloyd J Dumas can offer a far more effective and far less costly means of maintaining security After defining the right kind of economic relationship one that is balanced and nonexploitative emphasizes development and minimizes environmental damage Dumas then addresses some practical concerns in establishing and maintaining these relationships He also considers the practical problems of the transition from military based security arrangements to economic peacekeeping and the effects of demilitarized security on economic development and prosperity

Facing Global Environmental Change Hans Günter Brauch,Navnita Chadha Behera,Patricia Kameri-Mbote,John Grin,Úrsula Oswald Spring,Béchir Chourou,Czeslaw Mesjasz,Heinz Krummenacher,2009-06-04 The year 2007 could perhaps accurately be described as the year when climate change finally received the attention that this challenge deserves globally Much of the information and knowledge that was created in this field during the year was the result of the findings of the Fourth sessment Report AR4 of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change IPCC which were disseminated on a large scale and reported extensively by the media This was the result not only of a heightened interest on the part of the public on various aspects of climate change but also because the IPCC itself proactively attempted to spread the findings of its AR4 to the public at large The interest generated on the scientific realities of climate change was further enhanced by the award of the Nobel Peace Prize to the IPCC and former Vice President of the US Al Gore By taking this decision in favour of a leader who has done a great deal to create awareness on climate change and a body that assesses all scientific aspects of climate change and disseminates the result of its findings the Norwegian Nobel Committee has clearly drawn the link between climate change and peace in the world
