Talk Show Campaigns Michael Parkin,2014-02-05 Over the past twenty years presidential candidates have developed an entertainment talk show strategy in which they routinely chat with the likes of Oprah Winfrey David Letterman and Jon Stewart In fact between 1992 and 2012 there have been more than 200 candidate interviews on daytime and late night talk shows with nearly every presidential candidate from long shot primary contender to major party nominee hitting the talk show circuit at some point during the campaign This book explores the development of the entertainment talk show strategy and assesses its impact on presidential campaigns The chapters mix detailed narrative with extensive empirical data on audiences content viewer reaction and press coverage to explain why candidates have embraced this strategy and the conditions under which these interviews are most likely to meet their expectations The book also explores how these interviews can enhance campaigns by connecting a critical segment of the voting population with candidates who provide useful political information in a casual setting Talk Show Campaigns shows that this is more than a gimmick it s a key part of how candidates communicate with voters which reveals a lot about how campaigns have changed over the past two decades

The Money Shot Laura Grindstaff,2008-11-07 He leaped from his chair ripped off his microphone and lunged at his ex wife Security guards rushed to intercept him The audience screamed then cheered Were producers concerned Not at all They were getting what they wanted the money shot From classy shows like Oprah to trashy shows like Jerry Springer the key to a talk show s success is what Laura Grindstaff calls the money shot moments when guests lose control and express joy sorrow rage or remorse on camera In this new work Grindstaff takes us behind the scenes of daytime television talk shows a genre focused on real stories told by ordinary people Drawing on extensive interviews with producers and guests her own attendance of dozens of live tapings around the country and more than a year's experience working on two nationally televised shows Grindstaff shows us how producers elicit dramatic performances from guests why guests agree to participate and the supporting roles played by studio audiences and experts Grindstaff traces the career of the money shot examining how producers make stars and experts out of ordinary people in the process reproducing old forms of cultural hierarchy and class inequality even while seeming to challenge them She argues that the daytime talk show does give voice to people normally excluded from the media spotlight but it lets them speak only in certain ways and under certain rules and conditions Working to understand the genre from the inside rather than pass judgment on it from the outside Grindstaff asks not just what talk shows can tell us about mass media but also what they reveal about American culture more generally
